The aim of the international scientific and expert conference Antisemitism, War and the Righteous among the Nations is to shed light on and explore the work of the Righteous among the Nations of the Dubrovnik region and the Peljesac peninsula. The intention is to depict the time of war and the role of the local population in helping Jewish families, and to conclude their story by inviting heirs or living members of the rescued families as guests. Particular attention will be paid to the suffering and deportation of Jews in the Dubrovnik area from mid-1941 onwards.

The bulk of the conference discussions will be based on the testimonies of the descendants or contemporaries of both the saved families and the Righteous Among the Nations. Remembrance and memories, torn fragments of the family heritage, but also documented evidence of the life and work, suffering and courage, the context in which special attention will be given to strong business and friendship bonds between ordinary, little people who did not hesitate to do good. For this reason, the conference will be held under the motto “When a man is a man to man.”
